

Sofia Kirwan-Baez

SINGER & PIANIST

Sofia Kirwan-Baez is an Anglo-Venezuelan singer, songwriter and pianist whose performances bring together jazz, chanson, pop and original music in an intimate, engaging concert experience.

Accompanying herself at the piano, Sofia combines expressive vocals with thoughtful storytelling, creating performances that are both warm and deeply personal. Her repertoire moves seamlessly between reimagined jazz standards, beloved songs that have shaped her musical journey, and her own original compositions, each reflecting her distinctive musical voice.

A graduate of the University of Oxford and the Royal College of Music, Sofia also enjoys a flourishing career as an operatic soprano, performing with leading companies and at renowned venues across the UK and Europe. This dual career gives her performances a unique artistic perspective, blending classical refinement with the spontaneity and freedom of jazz and contemporary song.

Whether performing in an intimate jazz club, at a private event or on the concert stage, Sofia is known for creating an atmosphere that is relaxed, heartfelt and genuinely connected with her audience. Her concerts invite listeners to experience music that is both timeless and personal—celebrating storytelling, emotion and the joy of live performance.

"She wowed the audience [...] with her unique song style, blending both pop and opera sounds through both her music and lyrics."
Music Industries Association 2025

"She really lives her songs with remarkable intensity, captivating the audience, all the more so thanks to her impeccable diction.."
Blog Excit'oeil 2023

"The jazz standards were impressively and beautifully sung."
Mark Aspen 2021
